Quarterly fund commentary

Despite a difficult start to 2016, credit oriented assets saw a strong recovery in the second half of Q1 amid supportive policy action and commentary from the US Federal Reserve, depreciation of the US dollar, recovery in commodity prices, and reduced recession fears in the USA. Healthy investor demand led to strong credit performance from late February through March. The fund navigated this volatility by reducing high yield and emerging market exposure with synthetic credit default swap hedges early in Q1 and removing them by late February. Portfolio managers expressed concern about Asian growth prospects through a position in Australian government bonds, and an Asia ex-Japan credit default swap hedge. During Q1, portfolio managers increased exposure to metals and mining and energy given what they considered to be attractive valuations, and these sectors benefitted performance. Collateralized debt obligations (CDOs), through which exposure to bank loans is gained, detracted early in Q1 given credit market concerns, but recovered in March. Looking ahead, portfolio managers expect increased volatility to continue. As such, they anticipate reducing CDO exposure and adding short dated senior secured high yield bonds.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund will invest in derivatives (complex instruments) which will be leveraged and which may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund's performance may be adversely affected by variations in the exchange rates between the base currency of the fund and the currencies in which the investments are made. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The fund may hold a significant amount of debt instruments which are of lower credit quality and may result in large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The risks described herein are the fund specific material risks. For more information please consult the current fund and share class specific Key Investor Information Document (KIID) and for a complete set of risks the current prospectus.

There can be no assurance that developments will transpire as forecasted in this presentation. Where securities are mentioned in this document they do not necessarily represent a specific portfolio holding and do not constitute a recommendation to purchase, hold or sell. The ongoing charges figure is based on annualised expenses for the period ending 31/08/2015. This figure may vary from year to year. It excludes portfolio transaction costs except in the case of an entry or exit charge paid by the Fund when buying or selling shares/units in another fund. Please refer to the most up to date relevant fund and share class-specific Key Investor Information Document for more information on our funds. Further information on our products is available using the contact details shown. The fund yields shown are expressed as a % per annum of the current NAV of the fund. They are an estimate for the next 12 months, assuming that the fund's portfolio remains unchanged and there are no defaults or deferrals of coupon payments or capital repayments. Cash income is estimated coupons from bonds. The gross current yield is an indication of the expected cash income over the next 12 months. The gross redemption yield is a longer-term picture indicating expected annual total return. This means that in addition to expected cash income, it includes the amortised annual value of unrealised capital gains or losses of bond holdings currently held by the fund, calculated with reference to their current market price and expected redemption value made upon maturity of the bonds. Neither of the yields is guaranteed. Nor do they reflect the impact of the ongoing charges, the portfolio transaction costs or the entry charge of the fund. Investors may be subject to tax on distributions. This document is issued in Germany by Invesco Asset Management Deutschland GmbH.
