Quarterly fund commentary

Corporate bonds (credit) assets were strong during the second quarter with positive index results across global high yield bonds, bank loans, investment grade credit, and emerging market debt. Global growth remains resilient, with the US and Europe showing strength since the second half of last year. We are closely monitoring China for potential headwinds. We are also keeping an eye on consumer spending, as the consumer is one of the keys to maintaining our constructive growth view. Current themes across all credit sectors include a preference for financial issuers over non-financials due to improving bank fundamentals and regulatory changes. Emerging markets are benefiting from a supportive global backdrop and steady fundamentals. We are somewhat cautious on high yield bonds as strong performance in the sector over the past 18 months puts valuations at inflated levels. Across credit markets, managers continue to focus on solid issuer fundamentals, and look for attractive bonds to add on an opportunistic basis. A strong global growth picture, stable inflation and easy financial conditions are all constructive for credit assets. However, as interest rates rise, we express caution as the risks to pre financial crisis conditions are raising.
