Quarterly fund commentary

Both Asia Pacific ex Japan equity markets and Asian bond markets rose over the quarter. Asian bonds outperformed equities as they benefited from US Treasury yields trending lower as well as credit spreads tightening. Within equities, most Asian markets achieved positive total returns on the back of favourable government policies and political developments. The ASEAN and Indian equity markets were outperformers, while the Australian and Chinese markets lagged. From a sector performance, defensive sectors such as consumer staples and telecommunication services outperformed cyclical sectors such as industrials and materials. We maintained a tilt towards Asian high dividend equities but our position in equities has come down during the quarter in view of greater market uncertainties as major events unfolded such as the US Federal Reserve's interest rate decision and the Brexit referendum. Our equity exposure remained well-diversified across countries, with Australia and Greater China being the largest exposures as we continued to find many attractive opportunities in these countries. On the fixed income side, the majority of bonds remained US dollar-denominated bonds, and we continue to have a preference towards Chinese issuers. As regards currency management, we seek to reduce risk, and have maintained a large exposure to both the US and Hong Kong dollar.
