Quarterly fund commentary

Asia ex Japan equity markets rallied in Q1 as a wide range of positive macroeconomic data strengthened investor expectations for growth in Asia. The improvement in the outlook favoured selected consumer sectors, with the IT sector making notable gains on the back of positive earnings revisions. The consumer discretionary sector saw good returns from a number of areas, including education, jewellery, retailers, e-commerce and automakers, especially in China. Indian auto manufacturers also enjoyed strong returns as concerns surrounding the impact of demonetisation eased. In term of sector performance at the regional level, the consumer staples sector underperformed given concerns over margin erosion from intensifying price competition, especially in the food and beverage industry. The healthcare sector was impacted by ongoing uncertainty over trade relations with the US, especially pharmaceutical companies in India and China. We believe that domestic consumption will continue to support economic growth in Asia given favourable demographics and improving wages. The fund's primary focus is on consumer-related sectors in Asia and as such we remain focused on companies in the consumer discretionary, consumer staples and healthcare sectors as sources of sustainable growth.
