Quarterly fund commentary

Asia ex Japan equity markets rose marginally in Q2. Most Asian markets achieved positive total returns on the back of favourable government policies and political developments. ASEAN equity markets led market gains, while the South Korean and Chinese equity markets lagged. There was a wide dispersion of returns across Asian consumer sectors. The consumer discretionary and healthcare sectors declined, while the consumer staple companies rallied and strongly outperformed other non-consumer sectors. Within the consumer discretionary sector, performance weakness was concentrated in Hong Kong-listed Macau gaming companies, which fell on lacklustre gross gaming revenue, as well as South Korean auto exporters which declined amidst weak overseas shipments to the US. Within healthcare, the South Korean pharmaceutical companies suffered from profit-taking activities. On the positive side, the consumer staples sector in most Asian markets rose reflecting robust domestic demand. Looking ahead, we are optimistic that the Chinese consumer will remain supportive to growth given low household debt, while India's consumer spending is also expected to be well underpinned by rising income levels. The fund remains focused on Asian consumer-related sectors, such as consumer discretionary, consumer staples and healthcare, as we believe these areas will exhibit steady earnings growth.
