Quarterly fund commentary

Asia ex Japan equities continued to rise in Q4 thanks to solid earnings and favourable macroeconomic conditions. India was the best-performing market in Asia over the quarter, as confidence in the long-term benefits of the government's bold reforms, such as the goods and services tax (GST) roll-out, lifted market sentiment. Macroeconomic indicators in India improved towards the year end, with the manufacturing PMI, and trade and consumption data such as auto sales, all pointing towards a robust domestic economy. South Korea was another standout performer. Investors' sentiment recovered as geopolitical tensions with China eased, and this benefited the consumer related sectors. China and Hong Kong equities continued to rise, supported by positive earnings upgrades. ASEAN equities recorded strong performance too – most economies delivered stronger-than-expected GDP growth in Q3 amid improving exports and steady domestic consumption. Our investment strategy is to take a selective approach with a strong focus on bottom-up stock opportunities. In terms of overall country allocation, we continue to maintain a well-balanced positioning, with a focus on the stock opportunities in Greater China, while being underweight in ASEAN equity markets relative to the reference index.
