Quarterly fund commentary

Asian equity markets ended Q3 lower, largely due to fears about the slowdown in China's economy and Chinese yuan devaluation, as well as concerns the US Federal Reserve would raise interest rates in September, which it did not. Concerns over the impact of China's economic slowdown, particularly on global growth, shook investor confidence in Greater China equity markets, with currency depreciation and moderating domestic economic growth additional headwinds for ASEAN equity markets. India and South Korea's equity markets were more resilient, posting smaller declines. Indian IT services companies posted strong earnings results while there were signs of improvement in South Korean domestic demand, where the government has implemented stimulus measures to try and boost investment and consumption. Our investment strategy is focused primarily on fundamentals and bottom-up stock selection, favouring companies with sustainable industry leadership and competitive advantages trading below what we consider to be fair value. As such, we have a bias towards Greater China and India, where we see more opportunities than in ASEAN equity markets. We continue to prefer consumer-related sectors, including IT, over financials, energy and industrials.
