Quarterly fund commentary

The shadow of higher US interest rates in 2H 2015 will, in our view, place many Asian currencies under pressure of depreciation. We are therefore underweight in Asian local currency bonds as compared to the HSBC Asian USD Bond TR benchmark. The exception is the Chinese Renminbi (RMB) bond market, where we continue to see value. The RMB is supported by a strong sovereign credit profile. We believe the disinflationary pressures in China will lead to lower interest rates over the next 12 months, underlined by stable RMB currency performance (down 0.2% only against the US dollar in 1H 2015). We have an overweight position in the bonds of commodities importing countries too. In our view, weak global commodities prices are positive for commodities importers like China and India, while negative for commodities exporters like Indonesia and Malaysia. Overall, the Asian US$ corporate bonds are tending to provide higher yields than their European and US counterparts of similar maturities and credit ratings. Given the low yield environment in developed markets and the geopolitical turmoil in some parts of ex-Asia emerging markets, we expect more global capital to flow into Asia to buy US$ bonds and we will actively look for opportunities to add Asian US$ bond exposures on perceived market weakness.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The risks described herein are the fund specific material risks. For more information please consult the current fund and share class specific Key Investor Information Document (KIID) and for a complete set of risks the current prospectus. If you are unsure of any of these risks please contact your advisor.

Important Information

¹The original fund launch date in this factsheet is identical with the fund launch date on the KIID.

The forecasts and market outlook presented in this material reflect subjective judgments and assumptions of the investment manager or its delegate and unexpected events may occur. There can be no assurance that developments will transpire as forecasted in this presentation. Where securities are mentioned in this document they do not necessarily represent a specific portfolio holding and do not constitute a recommendation to purchase, hold or sell. The ongoing charges figure is based on annualised expenses for the period ending 31/08/2014. This figure may vary from year to year. It excludes portfolio transaction costs except in the case of an entry or exit charge paid by the Fund when buying or selling shares/units in another fund. Please refer to the most up to date relevant fund and share class-specific Key Investor Information Document for more information on our funds. Further information on our products is available using the contact details shown. The yields shown are expressed as a % per annum of the current NAV of the fund. They are an estimate for the next 12 months, assuming that the fund's portfolio remains unchanged and there are no defaults or deferrals of coupon payments or capital repayments. Cash income is estimated coupons from bonds. The gross current yield is an indication of the expected cash income over the next 12 months. The estimated gross redemption yield is a longer-term picture indicating expected annual total return. This means that in addition to expected cash income, it includes the amortised annual value of unrealised capital gains or losses of bond holdings currently held by the fund, calculated with reference to their current market price and expected redemption value made upon maturity of the bonds. Neither of the yields is guaranteed. Nor do they reflect the fund charges or the entry charge of the fund. Investors may be subject to tax on distributions.
