Quarterly fund commentary

Relative to the reference index, the fund is overweight the US dollar, commodity-importing countries and consumption industries; and underweight commodity-exporting countries and heavy industries. This has contributed positively to the fund's performance. Most Asian currencies are under depreciation pressure versus the US dollar. We expect energy and commodities prices to remain weak given likely exports of crude oil from Iran, exports of LNG from Australia and the economic slowdown in China. As China re-balances its economy, there is likely to be increasing divergence of credit performance among industries. Given rising financial market volatility, investors from Asian countries may increase allocations to sovereign USD bonds. "Home-biased" buying should support the USD bonds of China, Hong Kong, Singapore, Korea and Taiwan. We continue to aim to actively manage downside risk without being constrained by the reference index. In December 2015 we became more defensive ahead of the rate hike by the US Federal Reserve, our second round of short-term "risk-off" tactics since August 2015. We will remain nimble and keep a close eye on signals for a shift back to a "risk-on" mode. We feel some parts of the Asian bond market are oversold, offering attractive valuations.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The risks described herein are the fund specific material risks. For more information please consult the current fund and share class specific Key Investor Information Document (KIID) and for a complete set of risks the current prospectus.

There can be no assurance that developments will transpire as forecasted in this presentation. Where securities are mentioned in this document they do not necessarily represent a specific portfolio holding and do not constitute a recommendation to purchase, hold or sell. The ongoing charges figure is based on annualised expenses for the period ending 31/08/2015. This figure may vary from year to year. It excludes portfolio transaction costs except in the case of an entry or exit charge paid by the Fund when buying or selling shares/units in another fund. Please refer to the most up to date relevant fund and share class-specific Key Investor Information Document for more information on our funds. Further information on our products is available using the contact details shown. The yields shown are expressed as a % per annum of the current NAV of the fund. They are an estimate for the next 12 months, assuming that the fund's portfolio remains unchanged and there are no defaults or deferrals of coupon payments or capital repayments. Cash income is estimated coupons from bonds. The gross current yield is an indication of the expected cash income over the next 12 months. The estimated gross redemption yield is a longer-term picture indicating expected annual total return. This means that in addition to expected cash income, it includes the amortised annual value of unrealised capital gains or losses of bond holdings currently held by the fund, calculated with reference to their current market price and expected redemption value made upon maturity of the bonds. Neither of the yields is guaranteed. Nor do they reflect the fund charges or the entry charge of the fund. Investors may be subject to tax on distributions.
