Quarterly fund commentary

The USD Accumulation Share Class of the fund won the "Best-In-Class" Award from BENCHMARK in 2017. Our interest rate hedging strategy has been reducing interest rate risk to the fund when the US Federal Reserve ('Fed') continued to hike interest rates and the inflationary pressures intensified. We endeavor to keep the fund's duration (sensitivity to interest rate) below 0.5 years for most of the time, compared to the Reference Index's duration of over 6 years. We will continue to keep the fund fully exposed to the US dollar, avoiding Asian currencies. To avoid shocks from geopolitical tensions of the Korean Peninsula, we will continue to maintain zero exposure to Korea. As we feel Asian high yield bonds (rated below BBB/Baa) represent a good and improving credit risk (the risk of non-repayment, which we feel is diminishing), and their default rates have stayed at low levels, the fund has been increasing Asian high yield bond exposure with the aim of increasing the fund's yield.

The performance period shown here starts on the last day of the first indicated month and ends on the last day of the last indicated month.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The fund may invest in contingent convertible bonds which may result in significant risk of capital loss based on certain trigger events. The fund may hold a large amount of debt instruments which are of lower credit quality and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund.
