Quarterly fund commentary

Improving fundamentals and the continuation of generally accommodative monetary policy outside the US provided support to most developed equity markets over the quarter. Thus, enabling them to move higher despite the turbulence resulting from fears over a potential trade war and geopolitical risks. The UK equity market posted one of its best quarters in years. Catalysts for the performance included a weaker pound, as well as a strong rebound in energy shares. US smaller companies also had a strong showing as they are largely insulated from trade war fears due to their lack of exposure to non-US markets. European and Japanese share prices also rose during the quarter, but Hong Kong equities declined sharply in June in sympathy with emerging market equities as a result of the surging US dollar strength. Results across bond markets were mixed with some markets experiencing 'safe-haven' gains while others succumbed to fears of interest rate increases. Commodities closed the second quarter with gains as climbing energy prices – a result of President Trump's re-imposed sanctions on Iran and a smaller-than-expected production increase by OPEC – helped overcome the impacts of the trade conflict, as well as a rising US dollar, which led to losses in agricultural and metals prices.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund uses derivatives (complex instruments) for investment purposes, which may result in the fund being significantly leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. Investment in instruments providing exposure to commodities is generally considered to be high risk which may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund.
