Quarterly fund commentary

Emerging European equity markets were not immune to developments happening elsewhere in the world, such as the gyrations in the Chinese stock markets and fresh uncertainty as to whether US interest rates will go up or not this year. Increased concerns over China's growth outlook had an adverse impact on commodity prices, including oil. Energy companies led the Russian equity market lower, though the Russia and Hungary indices remain the only two countries within the MSCI emerging markets index that have posted positive year-to-date performance in US dollar terms. The fund is positioned to benefit from long-term growth opportunities in a region that we believe is undervalued by the market due to geopolitical tensions. The fund invests in Russia, Poland and a range of other countries across the region. We seek to hold stakes in companies that we believe are well-run and have market position that should allow them to deliver a high level of return on invested capital. The fund's diversified approach is reflected in sector positioning, which is spread across a broad variety of industries. In particular, we favour the materials, industrials and consumer discretionary sectors.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. The Fund may invest directly in Russia, which can involve significant risks to capital. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The fund invests in a limited number of holdings and is less diversified, and therefore this may result in large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The risks described herein are the fund specific material risks. For more information please consult the current fund and share class specific Key Investor Information Document (KIID) and for a complete set of risks the current prospectus. If you are unsure of any of these risks please contact your advisor.
