Quarterly fund commentary

The first quarter of 2018 saw the return of significant volatility with global markets experiencing their biggest swings in over a year. Oil prices averaged higher during the quarter, buoyed by voluntary curtailments from OPEC and a decline in Venezuelan output. However, energy equities were among the market's laggards. The fund underperformed its benchmark primarily as a result of stock selection in the following oil & gas subindustries: exploration & production (E&P), equipment & services (services) and refining & marketing. A key contributor to relative returns was a lack of holdings in oil & gas storage & transportation industry following a ruling from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission with respect to tax allowance cost recovery in the rates that pipelines can charge. Overall, we believe E&P companies are spending wisely in a $60 oil environment. Further, if there is a shift to higher spending, we believe service names will be a beneficiary due to pricing power. Fund positioning reflects our opinion of the sub-sectors with the best upside potential and includes significant overweight in E&P and services, as well as significant underweight in integrated oil companies.

The fund invests in a limited number of holdings and is less diversified, and therefore this may result in large fluctuations of the value of the fund. As this fund is invested in a particular sector, you should be prepared to accept greater fluctuations in the value of the fund than for a fund with a broader investment mandate.
