Quarterly fund commentary

Global equity markets again delivered positive returns in the fourth quarter, supported by firmer global economic growth, as well as stronger corporate fundamentals. We added several stocks to the portfolio, including a UK-based consumer hygiene and home care products producer, a French construction company, a French stationary manufacturer, an Italy-based investment banking advisor and a French mass media company. Deteriorating fundamentals and/or valuations led to the sale of a Swiss e healthcare company, a Sweden-based credit management company German-based television station. Despite the 2017 rebound in global equities, a number of risks remain. The current bull market is approaching its ninth year and though valuations on international equities appear attractive relative to the US, valuations on US equities appear high, having traded at higher levels only during the 1999 technology/media/telecommunications bubble (based on the long-term price to earnings ratio which uses 10-years average earnings). Geopolitical risk also persists due to the ongoing "Brexit" negotiations, select 2018 elections and a volatile situation in North Korea. Additionally, volatility could resurface when central banks begin to pull back from ultra-low interest rates and quantitative easing programs. Regardless of the macroeconomic environment, we remain focused on applying our well-established, long-term, bottom-up Earnings, Quality, Valuation (EQV) investment process that seeks to identify attractively valued, high-quality growth companies.
