Quarterly fund commentary

Over the quarter, we continued to look for opportunities to improve the quality of the portfolio by adding and/or selling companies based on the team's EQV (Earnings, Quality and Valuation) outlook for each company. New additions to the portfolio included a Switzerland-based global luxury consumer goods company; a UK based inter-dealer money broker and a German based courier company. We sold the holdings in one name over the period - an independent oil and gas company - which was acquired over the quarter. Global data indicating slowing economic conditions combined with devaluation of the Chinese renminbi contributed to a sharp sell-off in global equities during the third quarter. Europe enjoyed relative tranquility after the Greek bailout package. Within this environment, valuations of what we view as high-quality companies on our watch list have improved. Therefore, if short-term market weakness continues, we will seek to take advantage of lower share prices for these companies. Regardless of the macroeconomic environment, we remain focused on a bottom-up investment approach of identifying attractive companies that fit our EQV (Earnings, Quality, Valuation) investment process.
