Quarterly fund commentary

Global equity markets fell in the fourth quarter to round off their worst year since the global financial crisis. Markets were rattled by a myriad of concerns including US Federal Reserve (Fed) raising interest rates too quickly, US economic growth being revised down for the third quarter, as well as the UK's exit from the EU and the ongoing US-China trade talks. Emerging equity markets were not immune to the broad sell-off either, but losses were much smaller than those in the developed markets. In this market environment the fund underperformed its benchmark index. Stock selection in the entertainment and the hotels, restaurants and leisure industries were the largest detractors from relative performance. Within the entertainment industry, out-of-index holdings were key detractors. Global video game stocks came under pressure due to regulatory headwinds in China and specific title issues at a number of large publishers, combined with a market rotation out of growth and towards defensive areas. Positive relative contributions came from a structural underweight to Amazon, which came under pressure following third quarter results, as well as an overweight to holdings which were less impacted by global trade tensions. We believe we are in a period of disruption, where consumer habits are rapidly changing with the introduction of new technology. Technology is changing where we shop, how we shop, how we consume media, how we spend our time, how we travel, and as a result: how we spend our discretionary income. These changes are driving large shifts in market share between companies, creating an excellent environment for bottom-up fundamental research and stock picking.
