Quarterly fund commentary

After a strong run, global equity markets gave back year-to-date gains following a sharp sell-off at the beginning of February. Markets struggled to absorb US employment data, which came in well ahead of expectations. After a brief recovery, equity markets again came under pressure as attention turned to the potential impact of US President Trump's proposed trade tariffs. While initial tariffs were tempered to exclude some 'friendly' nations, the tone had been set. The quarter also saw an interest rate hike from the US Federal Reserve, which was accompanied by a more positive outlook for the US economy. Monetary policy in the Eurozone remained very accommodative and the Bank of England appeared to be flagging a May interest rate hike. Changes to the portfolio included a new US dollar vs Taiwanese dollar idea. The Taiwanese currency has benefited from the increase in global trade but could struggle from here, especially as China emerges as a regional competitor instead of an importer. We also added a new interest rates idea, which prefers Italian government debt relative to Europe as we believe Italian debt dynamics have turned a corner. We closed our 'Interest Rates - Swap Spreads' idea and our 'Equity - US Large Cap vs Small Cap' idea following strong performance.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund uses derivatives (complex instruments) for investment purposes, which may result in the Fund being significantly leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund may invest in distressed securities which carry a significant risk of capital loss. Investments in debt instruments which are of lower credit quality may result in large fluctuations in the value of the Fund. The effects of inflation may result in a reduction in the value of your investment.
