Quarterly fund commentary

The first three months of 2018 were characterised by rising government bond yields. The main driver for the rise was stronger than expected economic data, which in turn increased expectations about the speed at which central banks would need to raise interest rates. The US Federal Reserve increased US interest rates for the sixth time this investment cycle in March taking the upper bound of the rate to 1.75%. The latest forecasts from the Fed are for three further hikes this year. In the UK, the Bank of England signalled that it might raise UK interest rates again soon. The market currently expects a 25 basis point hike in May 2018. The fund is defensively positioned with around 20% of the fund currently held in cash. The fund's largest allocation is to developed market government bonds. This exposure includes an allocation to inflation linked government bonds; predominately US Treasury Inflation Protected Securities. In addition to this developed market exposure around 10% of the fund is currently allocated to emerging market government bonds. To benefit from the additional yield available, we also have exposure to corporate bonds. Our preferred sector within this allocation is financials.

Each period starts at the end of the indicated month. The first indicated month may not represent a full month and may start only on the launch/restructuring date indicated in the headline.
