Quarterly fund commentary

Trade tensions continued to dominate the headlines during the fourth quarter, affecting Greater China markets that are heavily exposed to regional supply chains. Hong Kong equities performed the best, led by consumer staples and communication service sectors. Taiwanese equities, on the other hand, experienced a challenging quarter. The heavyweight information technology sector suffered from weaker than expected smartphone demand and weak guidance from Apple. Chinese equities were under pressure as well. The domestic economy remained stable with real GDP on track to achieve the government's target growth rate of around 6.5%. Consumption and services growth continued to show resilience, supported by healthy household income growth. There were however signs of moderation in recent months with a number of financial and economic indicators pointing to a possible tightening of growth expectations. As such, the Chinese government since mid-2018 has taken a number of accommodative measures in a bid to stabilize near-term economic outlook, including tax cuts, reserve requirement ratio cuts for banks, and a ramping up of infrastructure spending. We maintain a focus on companies with sustainable leadership and competitive advantages through a purely bottom-up investment approach. This stock selection preference has led to meaningful exposure in consumer-related sectors, such as consumer discretionary, consumer staples and communication services sectors.
