Quarterly fund commentary

European high yield bond and equity markets delivered negative returns over the final three months of 2018. This weakness was the result of a combination of factors including the proposed Italian budget deficit, Brexit, trade tensions between the US and China, concerns over the pace of US interest rate hikes and falling crude oil prices. Within the high yield sector there was also some company specific volatility with the market punishing weak companies. This particularly impacted the retail and consumer services sectors. Fund positioning remains defensive, with relatively high levels of liquidity (cash, government bonds and short dated securities). The fund's allocation to non-financial high yield bonds is focused on high quality companies we consider carry a lower risk of default. Our largest sectoral allocation remains financials. Through the fund's equity allocation, we can benefit from an additional and potentially diversifying income stream, along with potential capital appreciation. As at 31 December 2018, 21% of the portfolio's assets were held in equities.
