Quarterly fund commentary

In the fourth quarter of 2016, the Bloomberg Barclays US Corporate High Yield 2% Issuer Cap index returned 1.85% (USD total return). During the quarter, the market was bolstered by a rise in oil prices and increased confidence in regulatory reform and new fiscal stimulus stemming from the November election. In the last three months of the year, the market continued to be led by the lowest credit rated segment of the market. In the aftermath of US election in November, concerns regarding changes to the Affordable Care Act weighed on the healthcare sector. The retail sector also has showed signs of stress as shoppers continued to migrate online for their purchases. Meanwhile, energy and metals and mining companies continued to repair their balance sheets through raising equity capital and asset sales. Fourth quarter corporate earnings woes are likely to be concentrated in healthcare, retail, oilfield services, and some metals and mining companies. For 2016, the Bloomberg Barclays US Corporate High Yield 2% Issuer Cap index returned 17% (USD total return) and as a result we believe the market has changed from a rising tide to one where careful credit and sector selection will likely be a key driver of performance for 2017.
