Quarterly fund commentary

The UK equity market rose strongly through the final quarter of 2017, a period characterised by incremental interest rate rises by global central banks, improving global economic growth and rising commodity prices. Into year-end, the FTSE All-Share index pushed to new all-time highs. The oil price broke through the elusive US$60 a barrel mark in October, closing 2017 above $65. Metals prices also rallied, particularly copper, which rose more than 30 per cent through the year. In November the Bank of England's Monetary Policy Committee voted to increase the UK interest rate to 0.5%. Inflation remained elevated, with the Consumer Price Index at 3.1 per cent in November, up from 3.0 per cent the previous month. The UK manufacturing sector performed strongly, the purchasing managers' index (PMI) posting a three-year high for the three months to December. The fund manager believes that the future direction of the UK equity market remains highly uncertain. Developments to date have already polarised market sentiment in a number of market areas, creating deep pockets of value. The fund manager has positioned the portfolio to exploit business-specific progress and out-turns in these undervalued segments and indeed any rotation towards value as a style. The fund's largest sector weighting continues to be integrated oils, a reflection of the manager's view on work undertaken by the oil majors to drive down costs. Other areas of focus include the mining sector, financials and specific domestic opportunities.
