Quarterly fund commentary

Government bond yields rose during the quarter as a combination of factors led to weakness in the markets. One of the most important of these is a rise in inflation expectations. Meanwhile, Donald Trump's surprise election as President of the United States led financial markets to focus on the President-elect's stated plans for large scale fiscal expansion. The negative effect of rising government bond yields fed through to other sectors. Investment grade corporate bonds, which are typically more sensitive to interest rate changes, underperformed higher credit risk parts of the corporate bond market such as high yield. The fund is currently positioned with a bias to the US dollar versus Asian ex Japan currencies. We have a preference for the government bonds of commodity exporting countries. The fund has a sizeable position in investment grade corporate bonds with a bias to European companies. Lastly, we have an allocation to US and UK inflation linked bonds. In the US, service price inflation is strong whilst in the UK sterling weakness is likely to create a favourable environment for inflation.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund will invest in derivatives (complex instruments) which will result in the fund being leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund may hold a large amount of Asset Backed Securities (ABS) (complex instruments) as well as lower quality debt securities which may impact the liquidity of the fund under certain circumstances. The fund may invest in distressed securities which carry a significant risk of capital loss. The fund may invest in contingent convertible bonds which may result in significant risk of capital loss based on certain trigger events. The fund will hold a large amount of debt instruments which are of lower credit quality and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. The risks described herein are the fund specific material risks. For more information please consult the current fund and share class specific Key Investor Information Document (KIID) and for a complete set of risks the current prospectus.

The ongoing charges figure is based on annualised expenses for the period ending 30/11/2015. This figure may vary from year to year. It excludes portfolio transaction costs except in the case of an entry or exit charge paid by the Fund when buying or selling shares/units in another fund. Please refer to the most up to date relevant fund and share class-specific Key Investor Information Document for more information on our funds. Further information on our products is available using the contact details shown. The yields shown are expressed as a % per annum of the current NAV of the fund. They are an estimate for the next 12 months, assuming that the fund's portfolio remains unchanged and there are no defaults or deferrals of coupon payments or capital repayments. Cash income is estimated coupons from bonds. The gross current yield is an indication of the expected cash income over the next 12 months. The estimated gross redemption yield is a longer-term picture indicating expected annual total return. This means that in addition to expected cash income, it includes the amortised annual value of unrealised capital gains or losses of bond holdings currently held by the fund, calculated with reference to their current market price and expected redemption value made upon maturity of the bonds. Neither of the yields is guaranteed. Nor do they reflect the fund charges or the entry charge of the fund. Investors may be subject to tax on distributions.
