Quarterly fund commentary

In the fourth quarter, the Bloomberg Barclays Global High Yield (USD) hedged index returned 0.97% (USD total return). Index performance was led by US high yield which returned 1.8%, while the high yield emerging market sector had a negative return of 1.4%. The US high yield market was bolstered by a rise in oil prices and increased confidence in regulatory reform and new fiscal stimulus stemming from the November election. Emerging markets were negatively impacted by the election and related outflows from the sector. For the US high yield market, the lowest credit rated part of the market continued to post the strongest returns. With the US election in November, concerns regarding changes to the Affordable Care Act hurt the healthcare sector while also weighing on emerging markets as concerns about access to the US market for emerging market nations were raised. The retail sector also has showed stress as shoppers continued to migrate online for their purchases. Meanwhile, energy and metals and mining companies continued to repair their balance sheets through raising equity capital as well as asset sales. We continue to believe the market has changed from a rising tide to one where careful credit and sector selection will likely be a key driver of performance for 2017.

Where securities are mentioned in this document they do not necessarily represent a specific portfolio holding and do not constitute a recommendation to purchase, hold or sell. The ongoing charges figure is based on annualised expenses for the period ending 30/11/2015. This figure may vary from year to year. It excludes portfolio transaction costs except in the case of an entry or exit charge paid by the Fund when buying or selling shares/units in another fund. Please refer to the most up to date relevant fund and share class-specific Key Investor Information Document for more information on our funds. Further information on our products is available using the contact details shown. The yields shown are expressed as a % per annum of the current NAV of the fund. They are an estimate for the next 12 months, assuming that the fund's portfolio remains unchanged and there are no defaults or deferrals of coupon payments or capital repayments. Cash income is estimated coupons from bonds. The gross current yield is an indication of the expected cash income over the next 12 months. The estimated gross redemption yield is a longer-term picture indicating expected annual total return. This means that in addition to expected cash income, it includes the amortised annual value of unrealised capital gains or losses of bond holdings currently held by the fund, calculated with reference to their current market price and expected redemption value made upon maturity of the bonds. Neither of the yields is guaranteed. Nor do they reflect the fund charges or the entry charge of the fund. Investors may be subject to tax on distributions.
