Quarterly fund commentary

Global corporate bonds continued to perform well despite a late sell-off in government bond markets leading bond yields higher. A number of political and central bank announcements during the quarter raised market uncertainty and the level of volatility in the market. The US Senate approved Trump's proposed tax reforms, while global central bank rhetoric continued with its hawkish tone. In Europe, the European Central Bank president Mario Draghi announced it will wind down its €2tn quantitative easing programme from January, halving the amount of asset purchases from €60bn to €30bn. Overall, global economic data continues to suggest synchronised global growth for the first time since the credit crisis. Looking ahead, we expect Europe and US growth to continue to come in strong. Chinese headwinds are less of a concern as the economy has absorbed restricted monetary policy rather well. Given the backdrop of strong global growth, stable inflation and restrictive monetary policy, we believe corporate bonds will remain supported. The fund follows a themed based approach, seeking out relative value opportunities across global corporate bond markets. The fund has a preference for subordinated financial bonds versus senior bonds. On a regional basis, we believe that Europe is currently the most attractive from a fundamental perspective, relative to the US and Asia. However, we remain positive on US based companies as technical drivers in the market remain very supportive.
