Quarterly fund commentary

China equity markets ended the quarter lower as trade tariffs risk continued between the US and China, economic activity disappointed and the currency weakened against the US dollar. The US recently released a list of tariffs on US$ 50bn worth of Chinese imports, and later also barred Chinese firms access to US technology companies. Against this backdrop, the People's Bank of China acted to reduce the amount of cash that banks must hold as reserves to encourage them to increase lending. We continue to believe reforms will remain top of the policy agenda, particularly those with a focus on promoting domestic consumption and investment. Domestic sectors such as consumer staples, utilities, and health care held up better on a relative basis while the real estate, financials and materials sectors lagged. In terms of investment strategy, we remain focused on what we consider to be quality companies with sustainable growth. We believe the government will continue to support the consumer and service industry and encourage innovation. The fund therefore remains tilted towards industries such as internet services, autos, education, retailers and food & beverages.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations in the value of the fund. As this fund is invested in a particular country, you should be prepared to accept greater fluctuations in the value of the fund than for a fund with a broader investment mandate. The fund invests in a limited number of holdings and is less diversified. This may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund.
