Quarterly fund commentary

The Indian bond market is currently witnessing the positives of higher real rates, an appreciating currency and ongoing economic reforms. Steady foreign inflows into portfolio investments and Foreign Direct Investments (FDI) have led to the appreciation of India Rupee. The forex reserves have gone past $404bn, lending the desired stability to the rupee. However, at the same time, there are also apprehensions in the market regarding potential fiscal slippage. The real rates have widened in the last quarter due to hardening yields result of fears of fiscal slippage. The widening of fiscal is primarily due to lower tax revenue and other dividend collections rather than excess spending. The $21bn inflows into Indian debt in 2017 underscores the improving macros substantiated by a credit rating upgrade by Moody's last quarter. Over 2018, the Reserve Bank of India is expected to remain cautious as headline inflation is expected to be higher than target 4% in the initial months. The fund maintains modified duration around 6 years, with overweight position in local rated AAA bonds to benefit from contracting spreads and high real rates. Interest rates and credit markets in India continue to create opportunities for steady income, improving domestic credits and moderating inflation and in time increase in real GDP growth of over 7.0%.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund will invest in derivatives (complex instruments) which will result in the fund being leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The fund may invest in contingent convertible bonds which may result in significant risk of capital loss based on certain trigger events. As this fund is invested in a particular geographical region, you should be prepared to accept greater fluctuations of the value of the fund than for a fund with a broader investment mandate. The fund invests in a limited number of holdings and is less diversified, and therefore this may result in large fluctuations of the value of the fund. The fund may hold a large amount of debt instruments which are of lower credit quality and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. Investment in Indian securities may be restricted due to the unavailability of the relevant quota.
