Quarterly fund commentary

Global fixed income markets and equities markets achieved positive return in USD terms during the quarter. Low unemployment and muted volatility continue to support synchronized global growth and heightened asset valuations. Macroeconomic data was very positive with stronger-than-expected growth registered in many countries including the US, Europe, UK, and Brazil. The US Federal Reserve lifted interest rates by 0.25% to a target range of 1.25%-1.50%. Inflation measurements continue to be muted while the national unemployment rate continues to hover near 4.1%. The long-awaited US tax bill was finally signed into law including large tax cuts for both individuals and corporations. In Europe, the EU area notched a third quarter GDP gain of 0.6%. The ECB noted its asset purchase program would be extended to September 2018, but the monthly purchase level would be reduced from €60 Billion to €30 Billion. Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe easily won the snap election in October in a landslide sending Japanese equity markets to new highs. Global inflation continues to be muted, albeit signs of localized warming have been observed, with most measured levels falling short of key central bank policy targets.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund will invest in derivatives (complex instruments) which will result in the fund being leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund may invest in contingent convertible bonds which may result in significant risk of capital loss based on certain trigger events. The fund will hold a large amount of debt instruments which are of lower credit quality and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. Investments in synthetic convertibles may result in significant risk of capital loss. Moreover, the value of a synthetic convertible responds differently to market fluctuations than a typical convertible because a synthetic convertible is composed of two or more separate securities, each with its own market value.

Important Information
