Quarterly fund commentary

Eurozone equity markets ticked down slightly in Q4. In 2017, European equities posted their best returns since 2013. Europe ended the year on strong footing as economic activity continued to expand at healthy levels. The pick-up remained broad-based with good rates of output growth in both the manufacturing and services sectors. The eurozone unemployment rate continued its decline in Q4, to the lowest in almost nine years, further underpinning domestic demand. Against such a backdrop, the European Central Bank (ECB) announced its first steps towards reducing stimulus measures after years of very accommodative policies, cutting monthly asset purchases by half starting from January 2018. However, with pricing pressures remaining subdued, the ECB extended its quantitative easing programme by another nine months until September 2018 to allow inflation to build up further and converge towards the target level. In our view, continued growth in domestic demand and falling unemployment in the Eurozone suggest mounting core inflationary pressures as we move through 2018. The fund's strategy rests primarily on fundamental analysis and valuation, combined with a close scrutiny of the macroeconomic context, to identify the best investment opportunities in the Eurozone. At quarter-end, financials stood as the biggest overweight sector relative to the MSCI EMU Index benchmark and information technology the biggest underweight sector.
